

Coolidge Caravan Here Tomorrow

Conclude First Week of Trans-Continental Tour With Big Meeting at Court House Grounds Saturday Night—Motorists to Meet Visitors Near Pine Hill.

The Coolidge-Dawes caravan now on a trans-continental tour of the country from Plymouth, Vermont, the home town of the president, to the Pacific coast, will arrive in Ulster county from Ontario some time Saturday afternoon, and plans for meeting the caravan are being made by the Ulster County Republican Committee under the direction of Chairman Philip Elting and Secretary John W. Eckert. The caravan will hold a meeting in Ontario at noon Saturday, and will then proceed here. All along the line, cities and communities have turned out to give the caravan a rousing reception, and all motorists who expect to meet the caravan Saturday afternoon at the Ulster county line beyond Pine Hill will be supplied with appropriate pennants by calling Saturday morning at Chairman Elting's office in the Ulster County Savings Institution building on Wall street, opposite the court house.

The caravan will be escorted from the county line to Phenicia where a meeting will be held and speeches made about 5 o'clock.

At the close of that meeting the caravan, escorted by Ulster county motorists, will proceed to Kingston where at 8:30 o'clock a meeting will be held on the court house grounds on Wall street, and addresses delivered.

The Citizens' Band of twenty pieces will be present and render an appropriate musical program. Wall street in the vicinity of the court house will be kept clear of auto traffic during the meeting.

Rousing receptions and meetings have greeted the caravan while en route and Kingston and Ulster county are expected to give the caravan a most enthusiastic reception.

The caravan consists of six motor trucks, and left Plymouth, Vermont, Wednesday.

Accuse Mother of Attempt to Kill

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Toms River, N. J., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Della Saunders, who according to the story told Prosecutor W. H. Jayne of Ocean county by her husband, attempted to kill a newly born baby by burying it alive in the woods near her home, will be tried for attempted murder as soon as she is able to leave the Paul Kimball Hospital in Lakewood, officials here said today.

In the meantime Sheriff Joseph J. Holman's office has sent officers to the Saunders' home in the bleak and desolate country on the edge of Barnegat Bay to search for the bodies of three other infants the husband thinks his wife also buried alive, according to the story he told officers.

It is not thought that Mrs. Saunders will be released from the hospital until early next week and the sheriff's office in the meantime will make a thorough search of the district for the infants' bodies. A special deputy sheriff has been detailed to guard the woman in the hospital although she has not as yet formally been arrested.

Eugene J. Saunders, the husband, told Prosecutor Jayne that he was suspicious of his wife because on three previous occasions when she was expected to give birth to a child she disappeared mysteriously. This time, he said, he watched her closely and after the birth of her child, unattended, she wrapped it in a bundle, went to the woods and left it covered up by branches and leaves.

The baby, which was taken to the hospital with the mother, is expected to live.

Chicago Slayers Escape Death on Way to Prison

Automobile Skidded on Slippery Road and Stalled in Front of Approaching Express Train Which Stopped Fifty Feet Away—Begin Serving Life Sentence.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Joliet, Ill., Sept. 12.—The strident ringing of a brazen gong rang through "Court solitary" at 6 a. m. today. It was a summons to convict 9305 and 9306—Richard A. Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., slayers of Bobby Franks—that the shackles had begun to bind.

Cool mornings these, but not so cool even in the outside world—at least not as clammy cold as stone walls on which the sun never shines.

It will be six o'clock from now on, at least on week day mornings. No more leisurely awakenings to prepare for a laughing journey to court where one can smile at friends and smirk at the curious.

Loeb and Leopold, known now respectively as 9305 and 9306, did not breakfast in the main dining hall, following the usual custom, they were in the cells by fellow convicts who stared curiously at the new comers in their prison clothes.

The pair were alert and eager to take their first steps through the routine that starts them on their program for the years that remain to them. It appeared that today's Defense Day program in the jail, however, would interfere with their desires.

The last thrill before the prison walls of Joliet closed about them, perhaps forever, probably the only thrill that Loeb and Leopold experienced since the killing of little Bobby Franks, was realized last night when the youthful slayers when their own lives were almost snuffed out in the mad race for the penitentiary.

Only quick work on the part of newspapermen and deputy sheriffs accompanying the murderers and the keen eye of an engineer saved the two "super men" and their guards, including Captain Wesley Westland, from being ground to death under the wheels of a speeding train.

The accident which almost cost the lives of five persons besides the slayers occurred just west of Argo.

Darkness had completely hidden the road ahead. On through the night sped seven cars. To the right were car tracks—the electric line to Joliet. Some distance down the track an express train was heading over the rails at terrific speed.

Suddenly the curtains veered, slipped from the cement road, left the rails and landed dead in the center of the track.

Down the track a thousand yards was the blinding headlight of a train coming closer at every second.

There was a grinding of steel on steel.

Less than fifty feet from the stalled car bearing the slayers, the train had come to a stop.

"My God," Leopold gulped, "we're driving too fast."

Babe, the unemotional soon caught himself. His fear turned to levity. "What's the hurry, we've got at least fifty years."

The two slayers sat in the rear seat of the second car, puffing cigarettes. Between them sat Hans Thompson, assistant warden of the county jail. Across his lap was a chain, one end of which was attached to Leopold's wrist, the other to Loeb's.

Babe looked up. "Tough towns, Summit and Argo," he noted as they passed through.

"If there's going to be trouble anywhere we ought to get it here," and a faint smile broke his stolid, expressionless face.

The words gave Dick courage. "Gee! I remember this country," and, stroking his chin as though it were a beard, he looked into the future and made a prediction: "Now, fifty years ago," he began, "with a farmer like drawn, 'I went through this town.'"

Then the great walls of the penitentiary loomed up. "There they are."

Leopold had spoken his last words before going within them.

Loeb sat there in silence. There they were—those great massive baricades.

Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., passed within those walls "for the rest of their natural lives and ninety-nine years."

COOLIDGE DESIGNATES FIRE PREVENTION DAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge today issued a proclamation designating Thursday, October 9, at National Fire Prevention Day.

This will mark the fifty-third anniversary of the great Chicago fire.

President Coolidge urged that the day be observed "with impressive activities in our schools, homes and essential establishments."

"The preservation of thousands of lives and valuable property is a task worthy of our constant endeavors and wholesome cooperation," the president said.

Flanagan Wants 21 Cops Present

Attorney, Arrested for Parking on John Street, Subpoenas Three-Fourths of Police Department to Appear at His Trial—Will Police Obey Summons?

This morning Attorney Chris J. Flanagan of No. 29 Broadway, who was arrested recently for parking his car in the restricted area on John street, was at the city hall and issued subpoenas for twenty-one of the twenty-eight members of the police department to appear at his trial in police court next Wednesday morning.

If the police department obeys the summons to appear in court that day, it will mean that the city will be almost entirely without police protection. For that reason it is expected that Chief of Police J. Allen Wood will take the matter up with the authorities to see if the police are compelled to obey the subpoenas.

Those for whom subpoenas were issued include Chief of Police Wood, the two police sergeants, W. F. Hanely and Charles Phinney, and nineteen patrolmen.

Mitchell George of Goshen, who was arrested the same evening as Attorney Flanagan, was found guilty of parking in the restricted area on John street when arraigned before Judge Robert G. Groves in police court this morning, and paid a $3 fine.

Policeman Keresman is the officer who arrested Messrs. Flanagan, George Farber and Mitchell George for violating the parking ordinance.

Mill Operatives Threaten Strike

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Providence, R. I., Sept. 12.—Mill operatives in this state threaten to strike in the event a wage reduction is brought about in the textile industry.

Organized labor throughout the state is preparing for a struggle with mill owners to prevent any reduction in wages following announcement of the Manville-Jencks Company, a $23,000,000 corporation operating mills in this state and in North Carolina, that it would reduce wages 10 per cent, effective next Monday.

Union officials take the action of the Manville-Jencks Company as the forerunner of general wage cuts and intimate that a state-wide strike will result. Rhode Island officials of the United Textile Workers have been instructed to notify the members of their various unions to be prepared to resist reductions to the fullest extent.

Nation Made an Inventory of Its Man Power

The New Citizen Army, Built Up Under Plan of National Defense, Made a Time Display—Secretary Weeks and General Pershing Broadcast Results.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 12.—The greatest peace time military display in the history of the United States took place today as the nation made an inventory of its man power.

The War Department after months of planning and preparation, presented to the people the new citizen army which has been built up under the scheme of national defense authorized by Congress four years ago.

From one end of the country to another and wherever Americans happened to be throughout the world there was an almost unanimous effort to make the first Defense Test a success.

Citizens Took Leading Part. Widespread cooperation of communities, led by civic and patriotic organizations, was indicated in reports to the War Department.

All regular army units participated in the defense mobilization as a matter of course, but the turnout, which was most pleasing to government officials, was that of hundreds of thousands of public citizens, who in their home towns, took part in the Defense Day activities and indicated to what extent the nation's armed forces could be augmented in an emergency.

Revival of Old Customs. Although the defense test was made in accordance with the national defense act of 1920, the plan itself had its inception in the days of the Revolution and more particularly in the militia act of 1792, which declared that all able bodied men owed military service to the republic and provided ways and means for enrollment.

The mobilization of man power was purely voluntary, although in some communities "orders" were issued by local officials in execution of the plan. In cities where troops of the regular army were stationed, local authorities cooperated with the War Department in going through the motions of building up a comprehensive military force with the regulars as a skeleton organization.

Patriotic Demonstrations Predominated. For the most part the ceremonies today took the form of patriotic demonstrations. Each city was allowed to work out the details of its own program, the only attempts at national supervision being along broad lines. For this reason the programs varied greatly.

In Washington the day's ceremonies were featured by a parade of 39,000 men including units of the Regular army, the National Guard and the Organized Reserve, followed by members of patriotic organizations. The parade was to be reviewed by President Coolidge, Secretary of War Weeks, General Pershing, the retiring chief of staff, and other government officials.

Results by Radio. Tonight Secretary Weeks and General Pershing will speak by radio to the whole country on the purpose and results of the defense mobilization.

The stations which will carry the Weeks and Pershing speeches include WNAC, Boston; WJAR, Providence; WEAF, New York; WGY, Schenectady; and WGR, Buffalo.

Citizens Observe Defense Test Day

Big Parade From End to End of City, Concluding With Patriotic Exercises at Fair Grounds, Show Kingston's Interest in Nation-Wide Mobilization.

Business in Kingston was practically suspended this afternoon in order that citizens might take part in the National Defense Test Day observance. This afternoon's parade was participated in by more than 2,000 people, and there was a much larger crowd at the Kingston Fair Grounds where patriotic exercises concluded the day's observance.

Kingston gave full evidence of its adherence to the significance and ideals of the National Defense Test Day. Veterans of our wars—the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and disabled veterans of the World War, who rode in automobiles furnished by the Kiwanis Club, headed the parade and furnished a reminder of what men suffer for the sake of their country.

Behind them came the active military organizations, civic and fraternal organizations and private citizens, all imbued with the same idea, of showing to the rest of the city which can be called to the colors in emergency.

Kingston look on the appearance of a holiday, with the American flag prominently displayed from homes and buildings throughout the entire city. Appropriate exercises were held in the city schools during the morning and special Masses and services were offered throughout the city churches. The streets through which the parade moved were well decorated with flags. Stores and businesses suspended work and the streets were lined with spectators as the parade marched in view.

To some degree, the day was observed more as a holiday than a Defense Test Day, so that the parade, while most creditable, was not as large, although it had all the enthusiasm which ever has been shown for any parade in Kingston. Defense Test Day had a meaning all its own, and the paraders as well as those who lined the sidewalks, realized this fact fully.

The large number of men in line, however, fully demonstrated Kingston's patriotism and determination to show its readiness to respond to the call of national duty, whenever that call might come, and the paraders received a measure of applause not accorded men who march under ordinary circumstances. The parade was most impressive.

The parade formed on East Strand and Ferry street, with right resting on East Strand at Broadway, and moved forward promptly at two o'clock, when the signal to march was sounded on the city fire alarm.

Behind the members of the G. A. R. and disabled World War veterans came Major O. R. Hiltbrand and staff, heading the First Battalion 156th F. A. N. Y., and the first and second divisions were almost entirely military organizations.

The third division furnished a reminder of the recent war, and the fourth division was civilian.

O'Reilly of Rosendale, a veteran of the World War, who was introduced by Judge Hasbrouck.

Killed in Leap From 17th Floor

Yonkers Woman Leaps From Hotel Belmont, New York City—Had Been Ill in Florida Several Months.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Maude L. Rigby, wife of George N. Rigby, business man of Yonkers, N. Y., ended her life today by jumping from the window of her room on the seventh floor of the Hotel Belmont and crashing to the sidewalk just a few feet from the main entrance to the hotel on Park avenue. Every bone in her body was broken and she died instantly.

Scores of early morning commuters, just coming from trains in the Grand Central station, saw the woman's body hurtle through the air and a crowd of several hundred gathered in a few moments. Several pedestrians were passings at the time and narrowly escaped being struck by her body. Her falling body passed within a few feet of two window cleaners who were working on a lower floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Rigby arrived in New York from Ormond Beach, Fla., last night after spending several months in the Florida resort. Mrs. Rigby had been ill and as soon as they arrived in their rooms at the hotel, Dr. Peter J. Gibbon the house physician, was called to attend her. He advised her to see a specialist and she was to have had further examinations and treatments today.

After they had retired for the night Mrs. Rigby was unable to sleep and walked the floor of the room most of the night. At 6:15 o'clock this morning she suddenly ran to the window facing the Park avenue side of the hotel and jumped out.

Italian Politics Lead to Murder

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Milan, Italy, Sept. 12.—There was a tragic repercussion from the Matteotti assassination today when Armando Casalini, a Fascist member of the Chamber of Deputies, was shot and mortally wounded on his villa estate by a private guard. Casalini died a few hours later.

It was first believed that the crime was one of private vengeance without any political significance, but it proved that the assassin had acted from a political motive.

The murderer, Antonio Corsi, told police he killed Casalini to vindicate the assassination of Socialist Matteotti. A number of pictures of Matteotti were found in Corsi's pockets. Corsi said he acted alone, that no one directed or aided him.

Governor Smith Appeals To Operators of Automobiles To Obey New Law—1,250,000 Drivers Outside New York City.

By Telegraph to The Freeman Albany, Sept. 12.—"Obey the new law and save lives."

This is the appeal which Governor Smith, by letter, is making to the driver of every motor car in New York state.

Recently the governor wrote a letter addressed to "The Licensed Motor Vehicle Driver" in which he said the state had launched a new effort to save human lives. He referred to the motor vehicle law enacted by the legislature of 1924.

After Motor Vehicle Commissioner Harnett read the governor's letter he had thousands of copies of it struck off so that the driver of every car could have one copy. When the owner of a car secures his operator's license he is handed a copy of the letter.

It is estimated that more than 1,250,000 operators outside of New York city, will have to be licensed by October 1. After that date persons who operate automobiles without licenses will be subject to arrest.

Here is the governor's letter: "Under the authority of the new law by which you have been licensed to operate a motor vehicle, New York state is going to make a new effort to save human lives. You undoubtedly are familiar with most of the important provisions of the law."

"What I would like to ask of you today, as the governor of the state, is your hearty cooperation in the enforcement of this law. If the public will give full cooperation the officials of the motor vehicle bureau can enforce it."

"When it is enforced I am firmly convinced that the toll of human lives taken in auto accidents will be reduced, or at least it will not constantly mounting higher and higher as it has been, day in and day out, year after year, ever since motor vehicles began to play so important a part in our lives and work."

"The state of New York is going to do its share in this task of saving human lives. Every citizen must help but automobile drivers can help more than any other class—by obeying the law and assisting, in every possible way, the officials charged with its enforcement."

MENTALITY OF BOYS AND GIRLS.

For a long time it has been contended that the average girl shows a more alert mentality during adolescence and forges ahead of the average boy in school. It has also been observed that later leaved girls in prosperous families go in for "culture" and appear to be better educated than young men who must spend their energies in work and give their leisure to sport or other amusements, with the result that the girls are so much more "cultivated" than the young men of their circles that often the former are inclined to doubt whether the latter are fit to become their wedded mates. But now comes the Federal Bureau of Education with a showing of mental superiority of Massachusetts school-boys over school girls, and the Springfield Republican, wondering if it can really be true that boys are really "smarter" than girls, goes on to say:

"These figures seem to challenge a number of commonly accepted theories regarding the relative mental accomplishments of boys and girls during adolescence. Surely this apparent upsetting of the widely held views that girls benefit by a certain precocity and exhibit a greater degree of conscientiousness at high school age requires analysis. For every two boys who fail to graduate there are three girls, according to the Federal Bureau's examination of Massachusetts statistics. Surely the situation cannot be due to a policy of 'less rhythmic and more rouge' on the girls' part, as the Manchester Union flippantly suggests. It is not likely that there has been any superficial change in manners or any profound change in human nature that accounts for this seeming overthrow of an old theory. Perhaps the theory was never true, or, if true, perhaps another reading of the statistics will show that it has not been overthrown."

DEMOCRATIC DISCONTENT.

Hundreds of thousands of Democrats are dissatisfied not only with the personnel of their ticket but with the principles as set forth in the Democratic platform or advocated by the Democratic candidates. Throughout the nation there is extreme dissatisfaction with the attitude of the Democratic party on the tariff question. Leading Democratic businessmen have joined in forming independent organizations for the fostering of protective tariff sentiment.

There is also disagreement with the attitude of the Democratic party on the subject of the League of Nations, hundreds of thousands of Democrats who left their party on that issue in 1920 indicating their intention to pursue the same course in 1924.

Equal and perhaps more vociferous protest is made against the attitude the Democratic candidates have taken on the observance of Defense Day. This feeling was expressed by the letter written and given to the public by Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the manager of the Democratic campaign, who vigorously criticized the position taken by Mr. Bryan and endorsed by Mr. Davis. Such a public protest would not have been made by the wife of the Democratic campaign manager unless she felt deeply on the subject and knew that she was voicing the sentiments of hundreds of thousands of other women of the Democratic faith.

A similar embarrassment has confronted the Democratic candidates because so eminent a Democrat as former Ambassador James W. Gerard has felt impelled to protest against the criticisms that have been aimed at Secretary Hughes because of the treaty affecting Armenia.

HARD WORK AFTER FORTY.

From time out of mind we have been taught that the early bird gets the worm and that success is attained only by those who work harder and longer than their fellows. Now comes Dr. Raymond Pearl of Johns Hopkins, with a pile of statistics to show that there is danger in hard work. Although up to the age of forty it does not appear to injure a man of normal health, thereafter, Dr. Pearl finds, those in strenuous occupations have a higher death rate than men whose work is sedentary. The death rate of the outdoor worker is, in general, less than the indoor worker after forty; but coal-heavers, longshoremen and the like "die young" and the greater the age the greater is the death rate. For persons from 55 to 64 it is 24 per cent. more for men doing hard manual labor than for men in careers not requiring physical exertion. The comment indicates that this is regarded as a new discovery, as it has long been known that physical vigor gradually falls after middle life and that it is unwise to overtax declining strength. Experience has also taught that even mental application should be more moderate after middle life. Like any inanimate machine both the human body and brain must gradually wear out, become less and less capable of long-sustained effort—an inescapable decline which every foresighted man will provide for as best he can. What is unexpected in Dr. Pearl's showing is the fixing of the beginning of falling powers as early as forty, when the average man has been supposed to enjoy his fullest prime. He recalls Dr. Osler's alleged dictum that men are "done for" after passing forty and might as well be chloroformed.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

EXTREMES.

I have talked about Chauncey Depew a number of times, and his methods of attaining not only a long life, he is now over ninety, but an enjoyable life.

His methods are simple. He eats what he knows agrees with him, and what gives him strength, and no more. He gets enough sleep for his needs and no more.

In other words he doesn't take a chance or try experiments on himself, now that he knows how to live. The family of the farmer, miles from a railway station or neighbors, or the family of the city man who live on a very noisy street, are really examples of extremes.

Extremes wear out the nervous system, and this in turn weakens all the other functions of the body. Statisticians will tell you that it is in the extremes of weather that we have the greatest number of deaths. That is in the very hot days of July and August, or the extreme weather of January or February, with the fitful weather of March.

In the hot months there is the weakening effects of the heat itself. You go about day after day, tired and bedraggled. To this is added the possibility of tainted food, particularly meat, milk, and fish. This is the reason that younger people and babies show such a large death rate in the hot summer months.

The lack of food, and the severe diarrhoea make their battle for existence a stiff one. Pure milk, inspected by the municipality, has made a perceptible decrease in the death rate of the younger children.

And then in the winter, there is always an increase in chest ailments. Many pull along pretty well until the severe weather of February, when the battle gets too hard for them. It is at this time that so many old chest cases succumb. That the close confinement at this time is an important factor cannot be denied.

What is the lesson in this? To remember that extremes are dangerous. Overeating means heart, kidney and liver trouble, a poisoning of self by this excess waste. Under-eating means that the blood will be thin, and that your fighting powers are thereby diminished. The other extreme. In summer weather, the eating of simple fresh foods, keeping out of the sun, and proper bathing, will give you your best chance to come through.

In winter the wearing of light clothing indoors, and heavy clothes when you go out, will prevent many of the chest conditions.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.
Sept. 12, 1904.—Miss Jessie Kent and Robert L. Shepard, married in Rondout Presbyterian Church.

Funeral of George Miner held from the home of his sister on St. James street.

Eight and Fifth Massachusetts Volunteers passed through town from maneuvers at Manassas.

Sept. 12, 1914.—New West Shore Railroad station opened to public at Marlborough.

Charles Bernard Beach died in New York city following an operation for appendicitis.

Floyd Overbaugh of Cementon and Harry Rose of Saugerties instantly killed in motorcycle accident near Saugerties when machine they were riding collided with an automobile.

Power From Volcanoes
In Italy and some of the volcanic islands of the Pacific the steam power issuing from volcanoes has been harnessed for engineering purposes. The people of the Tuscan town of Lardello light their streets, heat their homes and do their cooking by means of volcanic steam pressure, which generates enough heat to cook a joint in less than half an hour.

HOW

HAILSTONES ARE FORMED IN THE HOTTEST DAYS.—It is during summer-time that hailstones occur most frequently.

One might expect that these balls of ice would fall from the sky on the cold days of winter, but it is the heat of summer that gives rise to them, for they can be formed only in thundery weather.

When there is thunder about there are always very strong upward draughts of air. As raindrops begin to fall they are caught by these currents and carried to great heights, where they freeze solid. If they now fall to earth they arrive in the form of the small hailstones that are usually seen.

Sometimes, however, after falling through the clouds and receiving a coating of moisture, they are carried up again by their currents. The moisture freezes upon them, increasing their size.

The process may go on for some time, in which case the hailstone receives coating after coating of ice until it becomes as large as a marble or even an egg. Then it falls with millions of others, destroying crops, tearing fruit off the trees, and even killing cattle in the fields.

How Sense of Feeling May Be Proved Faulty

Most people would laugh at the suggestion that they could not tell hot from cold by feeling with their hands, says S. Lombard Bastin, writing in St. Nicholas.

The fact that they are not always able to do so is easily demonstrated in this way: Arrange three basins on a table side by side. In the left-hand basin, place water with lamps of ice in it to chill it as much as possible; in the right-hand basin, pour water as hot as can be borne without risk of scalding; in the middle, place a mixture of the cold water so that the temperature may be intermediate.

Now get some one to stand with the left hand in the left basin and the right in the right. After a minute or two, when the hands have become accustomed to the water in which they are immersed, put the both into the middle basin. It is then almost impossible for any one to say whether the water in this basin is cold or hot. To the hand which came from the ice-cold water, the impression is of a considerable degree of warmth. As against this, the hand that had been immersed in hot water feels the mixture to be quite cold.

This experience demonstrates the fact that it is not always possible for the human body to distinguish temperature accurately.

How Fireplace Developed

The development of the modern fireplace, which is today a sentimental rather than utilitarian, has a long history. In fact, until comparatively recent years there had been no marked improvement in methods of burning chimneys, fires and fireplaces. The methods employed centuries ago. Excavations in Pompeii have dated fireplaces of excellent construction, differing only in such features as dampers, ashpits and improved chimneys from the best construction of today. The mantel is of very ancient origin but in all probability its first employment was not for the purpose of ornamentation, but rather to secure a better draft; and the word mantel itself was originally identical with mantle, meaning a cloak; and fireplaces, primitive days were sometimes covered with a screen-like device. With greater skill in building chimneys and especially in creating back walls that improved drafts, the mantels became smaller and were used more for decorative effect.

How Industry Has Grown

In 1800 the manufacture of paper boxes was a staple industry and 50 years later there were 82 factories in the United States. In 1890 machinery began to be developed, but up to that time everything was done by hand. In 1900 the total sales were slightly more than $1,000,000, manufactured in 246 plants, employing about 4,700 people. In 1879 the product had advanced to $7,500,000, and in 1910 the output was valued at $36,000,000. In 1919, which was the last survey made of the industry, it had showed a remarkable growth. The capital invested was $37,000,000 and the value of the product $125,000,000; people employed, 57,000. These figures are for the set-up box industry only.—International Confectioner.

How Rails Are Hardened

The first application in America of the process for hardening railway rails after they have been laid is reported from Toronto, according to the Electric Railway Journal. A blowpipe is mounted on wheels and passed over the surface of the rail at a speed that gives a temperature of 850 degrees Centigrade to all points heated. Immediately after heating a jet of water is played upon the rail, the effect being to harden the surface and prolong its wearing qualities. The process is effective to a depth of from two to three-tenths of an inch, according to the pressure used in the blowpipe.—Philadelphia Record.

FAMOUS REGIMENT IS REORGANIZED

Third Coast Artillery First
Saw Service on July
1, 1794.

San Pedro, Cal.—Reconstituted as the Third coast artillery, historically famous fighting unit of the United States army which first saw service on July 1, 1794, recently reopened its history at Fort MacArthur, near here, under the command of Maj. George Babien, Jr.

Battle ribbons were on home and foreign fields during the long 130 years suffered from the color standards as "The Fighting Third" was ceremoniously reconstituted at the fort.

The Third regiment of artillery came into being following the Revolutionary war. It was recruited among the veterans of that war for service against the Indians in the conquest of the West.

Swept Yanks Before Him.
It first became prominent among fighting units on February 22-23, 1847, at the battle of Buena Vista. Gen. Santa Ana, commanding the Mexican forces, had swept all American resistance before him.

Without infantry to support him, and at the expense of losing his own guns, Captain Bragg, then commanding "The Fighting Third," brought his troops into action with a withering charge of canister. The first charge halted the Mexican advance.

The smoke from the second and third salvos cleared away with the Mexicans in rout. Thus the regiment won its present motto, "Saved the Day," which was conferred upon it by Gen. Zachary Taylor, following the engagement.

Through the War of 1812 and in the Florida peninsula campaigns the regiment served the colors creditably. In the California campaigns it was present at Monterey, Vera Cruz, Cerro Gordo, Buena Vista and the final engagement at Molino del Rey. It was present when the opening gun of the war was fired at Palo Alto, May 8, 1846, and took part in all major engagements.

On December 21, 1853, five batteries of the Third artillery embarked from the east coast for station in California, via Cape Horn, aboard the steamer San Francisco. Of the 600 souls aboard, 500 were men of the Third. On the day before Christmas the San Francisco struck a nor'wester that completely disabled her, and during which 175 men were lost overboard.

American Ships Aid Dredget.
A week later assistance was rendered by the dredget by the American ships Kibby and Three Bells and the British sloop of war Antarctic. The latter vessel carried 142 survivors to Liverpool, the first American troops to land in England.

After a year's trials and misfortunes the Third again assembled, and arrived in California, where it was actively engaged in marching and scouting until the outbreak of the Civil war, when its history was marked with distinction.

It served at the memorable capture of Manila, P. I., during the Spanish-American war, and was broken up into separate companies in 1901 to form the artillery corps of the army. Parts of the famous Third saw action on all the fronts of France during the World war.

Servants Told to Keep Masters in Their Place

London.—The "revolution" which conservative, self-satisfied English folks feared would overwhelm this ancient island with the advent of a Labor government, seems to be on the way at last. Miss Margaret Bondfield, Great Britain's first woman cabinet member, has advised domestic servants to put mistresses in their "proper place."

"The mistress is the unskilled person; you are the skilled one," said Miss Bondfield to a class of young girls training at the government center in Liverpool for domestic servants. "Domestic service," she continued, "belongs to the higher category of woman's work and demands as much skill as tailoring or teaching. Teach mistresses by your efficiency to respect you, but don't go to extremes and have silly ideas about what you may and may not do."

The newspapers comment laconically on Miss Bondfield's efforts to develop a new status for domestic workers. "They may establish their status, but it will likely be outside the homes where they have been working," writes one commentator.

Pat Man "Shakes Off" Bullet
Casper, Wyo.—Rex Buck of Idaho Falls, Idaho, was held up and robbed of $80 and slightly wounded on the Alcora road by a lone bandit, who fired as he commanded Buck to hold up his hands. The shot entered the abdomen. Buck, who weighs nearly 300 pounds, fairly shook the bullet by his flesh. It glanced and did not reach a vital organ.

Rats Destroy Roads

Newark, N. J.—Officials of Orange will try to discover means of keeping rats from undermining roads in the township. A few weeks ago new pavement on Hawthorne street, Orange, caved in. It was discovered by workmen that rats had dug a tunnel under the roadway and the pavement had collapsed into their hole.

Fall styles hang easily

YOU'LL find a great deal of freedom in the new fall suits. There's plenty of room at the shoulders; an easy drape to the coat with a slight suppression below the hips. The trousers hang full and straight; cuffs are wider; waist coats are free at the chest and drawn in at the waist line.

Many new fall colors

LAVA gray is a new note—gray with just a glint of green. Parrot blue is good too. Darker blues in patterns, stripes and diagonals are in favor. Then there are the London lavenders—a rich gray with a purple cast to it. We'll show you new brown shades—and many others.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX HIT THE YOUNG MEN'S FANCY THIS FALL

IT'S natural for any store to be pleased with the goods they offer for sale—everyone likes his own opinion of things. But we've been more concerned about the style opinions of young men in the selection of fall clothes, than we have in our own ideas. The result is: this is the greatest display of young men's styles we've ever offered. Young men say so; young men who know style and wear it. You'll say so, too, when you see the clothes Hart Schaffner & Marx have made for us. Nobody hits the young men's fancy the way they do. Great values, too.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM-BONNER

DRAGON FLY'S BOAST

"It amuses me," said the Dragon Fly to Billie Brownie.

"I am glad it does," said Billie Brownie, "for it is always nice to hear of creatures being amused, but I am sure I do not know what it is that amuses you."

"You know you haven't told me. You have simply told me a number of times that 'it' amuses you."

"True," said the Dragon Fly, "I haven't told you. But I will."

"Good," exclaimed Billie Brownie. "Yes," continued the Dragon Fly. "I will explain what it is that amuses me, and I want it to be that you can't help boasting a little, and I hope you will forgive me."

"Oh, that's all right," said Billie Brownie. "I suppose all of us boast a little at times, some more than others. And some more often than others."

"Even when some will say that they never boast, they are boasting a bit. For they are boasting of the fact that they do not boast."

"But pray explain yourself, Dragon Fly."

"It is about airplanes," began the Dragon Fly. "They are a wonderful invention, of course."

"I often think to myself that if I were a person I would certainly want to go up in one. I wouldn't be happy walking along the ground, as they spend so much of their time in doing."

"I don't wonder that they look up when they see airplanes and that they admire them."

"I can easily understand all that. It takes no effort for me to understand their admiration of airplanes."

"If I were always on the ground I would look up at those in the airplanes and would say how wonderful the airplanes looked."

"It seems only natural to me to see people looking up at those great big human birds swooping along and flying through the air."

"As long as people haven't wings themselves airplanes are the next best thing."

"Now, my wings aren't like the wings of an airplane, but it amuses me when I think of how proud they are of their airplanes and that they cannot do something I can do."

"What is that?" asked Billie Brownie.

"I'm coming to that, I'm coming to that," said the Dragon Fly.

"Pray pardon me if I seem impatient to hear," said Billie Brownie.

"Certainly," said the Dragon Fly. "I like to have an interested listener. It would not be very nice if you began to talk about something else."

"If such a thing happened I would feel that I had bored you and had not made myself interesting."

"Yes, it amuses me that people cannot do what I can do. No matter how I drop to the ground or even if I am dropped, my body always rights itself."

"I never drop any other way."

"Now airplanes don't do that. They go down head first and make poor landings, or they have accidents which make them land in frightful condition."

"But not so with Mr. Dragon Fly. Always, always, always my body rights itself."

"They have tried and tried and tried. To me it is so easy a thing. They can watch me all they want. They can copy anything I do and there will be no objection raised."

"But they can't accomplish this—they haven't been able to as yet at any rate."

"I don't blame you for boasting," said Billie Brownie. "I really don't."

"Mother Gave Herself Away"

Margaret is only seven years old, but sometimes quite naughty. On one occasion her mother, hoping to be particularly impressive, said, "Don't you know that if you keep on doing so many naughty things your children will be naughty, too?" Margaret dimpled and cried triumphantly, "Oh, mother, now you've given yourself away!"—Everybody's Magazine.

MORE FOOD FOR THOUGHT

When we learn as the French nation has learned, because of necessity, to use meats as flavors and in combination with other foods for nourishment, we will find less high blood pressure, fewer surgical operations and much better health. The saving on meats will save worry about high prices.

A small amount of meat will flavor a large amount of vegetables. The extractives of meat which give it the flavor are the appetizing part of the meat and the reason for our desire to indulge in that food.

For example, a pound of beef cut into small bits, browned and then covered with boiling water and enough vegetables such as onion, carrot and potatoes added to satisfy the appetites of the family, makes a much more wholesome meal and sufficiently filling, than a large amount of meat with a few vegetables. Overeating is the cause of cancer, so our physicians tell us. Too rich food, and too much of it will cause various serious troubles, fatty heart, sluggish liver, ulcers in the stomach and intestines and other equally serious diseases. A cheap cut of meat that seems full of tough fibers may be softened and made tender by long, slow cooking, adding a tablespoonful of vinegar to the water.

Mutton With Vegetables.—Take a pound of the shoulder of mutton, cut into serving-size pieces, brown in hot fat after rolling in seasoned flour, cover with boiling water to which a tablespoonful of vinegar has been added, add a cupful of diced carrots, one minced onion and a cupful or more of diced potatoes. Cover and cook slowly until the stew is thick and the vegetables well done.

When preparing hamburger steak add a cupful or more (depending upon the amount of meat to serve) of cooked oatmeal, one cupful to a pound of meat, adding a pinch of clove, a bit of chopped green pepper and a little scraped onion, with salt and pepper to season. Make into a long flat loaf and broil. Serve with a brown or tomato sauce.

"I Don't Blame You for Boasting," said Billie.

me when I think of how proud they are of their airplanes and that they cannot do something I can do."

"What is that?" asked Billie Brownie.

"I'm coming to that, I'm coming to that," said the Dragon Fly.

"Pray pardon me if I seem impatient to hear," said Billie Brownie.

"Certainly," said the Dragon Fly. "I like to have an interested listener. It would not be very nice if you began to talk about something else."

"If such a thing happened I would feel that I had bored you and had not made myself interesting."

"Yes, it amuses me that people cannot do what I can do. No matter how I drop to the ground or even if I am dropped, my body always rights itself."

"I never drop any other way."

"Now airplanes don't do that. They go down head first and make poor landings, or they have accidents which make them land in frightful condition."

"But not so with Mr. Dragon Fly. Always, always, always my body rights itself."

MONOTONY OF RUM ROW LIFE LED TO MURDER

Tragedy Revealed Through Complaint of Mother of Victim.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The cordon of silence which surrounds Rum row, outside the 12-mile limit off Atlantic City, was punctured recently by the tale of a murder committed months ago on one of the veteran vessels of the booze trade. Two governments, the British and American, joined hands in the case.

It is a tale of fierce hatred induced by the monotonous life of the sailors, who pass weeks riding at anchor in waters safe from revenue cutters. And if it had not been for the mother of the murdered man, who waited in vain in Ireland for the money he sent her each month, the account never would have reached the ears of the authorities.

November 23 the body of Robert Pike, a twenty-four-year old sailor, was sewed in a sack and slid off a board into the Atlantic.

Killed in a Brawl. Pike, according to Robert D. Clarke, Department of Justice agent from Philadelphia, was shot and instantly killed in a brawl on the British steamer Genevieve.

From his talks with sailors now aboard the Genevieve, Clarke is sure that the brawl was the outcome of the galling life the men lead, a life of os-

Wise Shopper Invests in Sensible Materials

There is nothing so unpleasant in dress as shabby finery and those of us who are obliged to keep up the self-complacency of a slim purse must buy so carefully and with such close attention to values that we are not compelled to cling to our "finery" a long time after it has ceased to be "fine."

We are all familiar with the appearance of the woman who tries to economize by wearing out an elaborate afternoon blouse with her plain tailored suit. Many women relegate an afternoon party gown to morning use simply because it is too soiled and worn out to do duty any longer for dressy occasions. Similarly white kid gloves are worn to "wear them out"—long after their whiteness has gone the way of the irrevocable past.

The housewife is not the only one who is guilty of unsuitably using her "shabby finery." A business woman, now and then, violates the canons of good taste by appearing at work in clothes, which, considered a bit passe for the dinner hour, have been relegated, perhaps with a minor change or two to the office.

"Dressing up" a costume is an error in a slightly different direction. Many a woman has tried to "dress up" a perfectly plain costume with bits of finery, using perhaps a "fancy" blouse of coarse lace or open-work embroidery, with a severe tailor-made suit, and succeeded only in throwing the costume out of key and cheapening the whole effect.

The important point for the shopper is to purchase sensible colors and materials in the first place. Rich delicate fabrics and delicate colors, however desirable they may appear in the store, are not suitable for hard wear, or appropriate for many purposes, or for many hours of the day. For the woman who can have only one suit, a beautiful serge will always be a "better buy" than the corduroy or velvet, no matter how fashionable or desirable the one may seem at the time of purchase. Simple clothes of good lines and quality materials are the only ones of which women can truthfully say that they "wore" as long "as there was a rag left" of them.—Kansas City Star.

New Ideas From Abroad in Jewelry for Fall

Jewelry will continue to play in the fall season an important part as a smart dress accessory. A buyer from a large New York store who returned a few weeks ago from a visit to England and the continent is displaying some pieces of jewelry she purchased when abroad.

One of the sets which is unusual and rare is of red onyx. The necklace is set with crystal roundels separated by knots of cord in the same soft red shade. The bracelet to match is in one piece, which is interesting, as onyx seldom comes in pieces from which large articles of jewelry can be fashioned.

Another lovely importation are chains of powder-blue chalcedony which come in the flat, the round and the torpedo-shaped bead. It is also to be obtained in a deep purple. Tortoise shell, it is said, will be another smart note in jewelry this fall. Strands of beads in brown and amber are featured, together with one-piece bracelets to match and cigarette cases.

Printed Chiffon Gowns

The college girl will find a printed chiffon gown a boon to her wardrobe. This season it is better than ever from a fashion standpoint, and never were the colorings and designs so varied and beautiful or so inexpensive. For afternoon or for more formal evening wear a gown of this material is not only versatile and correct, but also surprisingly practical, as it will stand an endless number of cleanings, and emerge each time fresh and unfaded.

Lowery Death Will Be Probed

Coroner Card of Dutchess County Not Satisfied That Auto Killed Creek Locks Man, and Will Hold Inquest to See if He Was Victim of Foul Play.

According to the Poughkeepsie Evening Star, Coroner John A. Card of Poughkeepsie is to probe the death of William Lowery of Creek Locks, who died in a Bridge City hospital after being found unconscious alongside the road near Staatsburgh on September 2.

The Poughkeepsie paper states: Coroner John A. Card stated today that he was not convinced that William Lowery, whose body was found alongside the road at Staatsburgh on the night of September 2, had met his death by being struck by an automobile as first stated, and will conduct an inquest to find if the man's death was not caused by foul play.

The wound in the back of the head which closely resembled a bullet wound did not have the appearance of having been caused by an automobile, but Coroner Card said that it had the appearance of having been made by some sharp instrument. Another strange feature is the fact that Lowery had been seen in Staatsburgh a short time prior to the finding of his body and at that time he was accompanied by another man, whose identity is unknown.

Every possible effort has been made to identify the man who was seen with Lowery, but as both were strangers nobody has been found who can give any clue to his identity. Lowery was identified through some addresses found in a small note book which he carried and was found in his pockets. He was unconscious when found and never recovered sufficiently to tell his name.

Relatives in Ulster. It was later learned that he had a mother and brother residing in Ulster county and a sister living at Peekskill. He had been working up the state and it is said that at the time he met his death he was on his way to visit his sister as he had written he was on his way and would arrive in a few days.

One of the peculiar features about his death was the fact that the only wound was the penetration of the skull at the base of the brain and there were no bruises or other injuries on the body that would indicate it had been struck by an automobile. The position of the body also aroused suspicion as it lay directly in the line of traffic but had possibly been seen by approaching motorists to avoid striking it.

The body when found had apparently been lying there for several hours as the blood had dried on the wound and it was not bleeding at the time. Undersheriff C. Fred Close and Deputy Sheriff John C. Ebbecke went to the place where Lowery had been found by Louis Konsler. Mr. Konsler had hurried to Hyde Park where he had summoned aid and returned with Dr. J. M. Cronk and Justice of the Peace Arthur S. Halpin. Dr. Cronk gave first aid treatment to the man and he was taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital in the sheriff's car.

The man died early the next morning and the autopsy developed the fact that the brain had been penetrated by some sharp instrument. The wound was not over a half inch in diameter but was about an inch in depth, lacerating the brain cells.

Witnesses to be Summoned.

All persons who saw Lowery and his companion at Staatsburgh will be summoned at the inquest as will the members of his family in Ulster county and Peekskill, in an effort to find a motive for the crime, if one has been committed. The correspondence with the family will be examined for the purpose of finding out the identity of the companion as it is believed he might have mentioned his name in some of the letters.

No articles of value were found on the man when his effects were examined by the coroner. He did not have any money or a watch and it was believed he had sufficient money with which to get to his sister's home, and his summer's savings with which he expected to live through the winter.

It was also thought he had a watch as he had one the last time he visited his mother in Ulster county.

Coroner Card said that he will probably hold the inquest the latter part of the week, but there are several phases of the case that he wants to investigate before he summons the witnesses and this will take a few days.

FARM POULTRY

ATTENTION NEEDED FOR YOUNG TURKEYS

After the first five or six weeks, roosts should be supplied for the young turkeys. Ordinarily, if there are open trees or rail fences in wooded spots, or other natural protection, no especial pains need be taken to supply roosts. However, where there are high winds it is better to build the roosts in a shed or next to the barn, or under trees where there is some protection. An excellent way to do this is to set the posts in the ground and lay poles across them at a height of from four to five feet. The evening feed should be given to the turkeys near this roosting place just before dark. It may be necessary, at first, to drive them to the place, but after a time they will come up every evening for their feed and will go to roost without any extra bother. By handling the turkeys in this way, the chances of loss will be greatly reduced and this little first trouble will pay in returned dividends, says the Successful Farmer.

During the summer, when wide range is available, little attention need be paid to the turkeys. Along about October or November they will leave the brood mother, the males ranging ordinarily by themselves and the females in another group. About this time it is usual to begin the fattening if the turkeys are intended for Thanksgiving trade. Along about October 1 begin feeding a little corn night and morning. Do not feed enough that the turkeys will be perfectly satisfied. Feed just the quantity which will insure that they will continue ranging and taking the exercise which is necessary for their health. Another object which is sometimes sought in feeding night and morning is the prevention of too wide ranging upon neighboring farms. It is not possible to successfully confine turkeys altogether. However, they may be kept up until noon and in this way be prevented from ranging too widely.

Live Poultry Prepared for Best Market Price

Marketing the poultry in live form is usually the most satisfactory method for poultrymen to pursue, unless the distance is so great as to make the shipping cost prohibitive. Poultry may be marketed both in live and dressed form, but the skill and experience required to finish and dress the birds for market make it advisable not to kill.

Most poultry raisers do not have the necessary skill to feed out, kill and pick the birds in a way to bring the highest market price. The lower quality of the product is very apt to more than offset the lower shipping cost and the feeder's profit. Also, there is more danger of improper handling and spoilage in transit.

Poultry, to be shipped in live form, should always be fattened before killing. This means better quality, more weight and a considerably higher price per pound. Poor and underfed poultry is hard to keep without spoiling, and if kept long it deteriorates greatly in appearance. The market is usually overstocked with poor poultry and understocked with first-class birds. All poultry, whether marketed dressed or alive, should be shut up in pens and fed from ten days to two weeks or more before shipment.

Feather Picking Caused by Lack of Ingredient

Feather picking is generally caused by a lack of some ingredient in the ration which is necessary to the hen. For one thing, they may lack animal food, such as meat, and it is a good plan in this case to put a hopper of high-grade beef scraps before the hens and keep it there. In case this doesn't do the work it will be necessary to buy fresh meat daily and feed them a limited amount. The best method of feeding is to hang on a string or wire just about as high as the hen's head, possibly half an inch higher.

Do Not Force Pullets

Early hatched pullets should not be forced to quick maturity by heavy feeding of mash, lest they begin laying prematurely and go into a winter molt. These pullets destined for egg production should be raised upon free range and fed largely upon whole grain and go into winter quarters in good firm flesh, with undiminished vigor for the coming season's production. Lights should not be used, unless it is found necessary early in January to stimulate egg production.

Maintain Cleanliness

Moist food substances spoil quickly in warm weather. Feeding utensils soon become contaminated. Bacteria and disease germs multiply rapidly. All of which means that the poultryman must use unusual care in maintaining cleanliness. In this way danger of disease is largely eliminated. It is not only entirely possible to have good success with late-hatched chicks, but it is much easier of accomplishment than with the earlier-hatched birds.

"Farce" and "Comedy"

A farce differs from a comedy in the emphasis placed on the plot. In a farce the characters are what the plot requires them to be, while in a comedy the plot is subordinated to the characters. The "Farce de Pathelin" is considered the most famous, its authorship being attributed to different persons. Generally, Pierre Blanchet, who lived in the Fifteenth century, is credited with it, but some think it was written by the poet Villon.

5 Operations—15 years suffering with constipation—Kellogg's Bran restores health

Mr. Lansing's case is typical of thousands of others. He found permanent relief from constipation in Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read what he says:

Dear Sir:

I have been afflicted with constipation for the past 15 years, and during that time I have been in four different hospitals and submitted to five different operations that were the result of constipation. I was getting so bad that every meal I ate caused me stomach trouble. Two months ago I was advised to eat four Kellogg's Bran. I tried it, and as I was trying everything I could hear of, from that day on I have never taken a physic. My stomach does not sour any more and my bowels move regularly morning and evening. Yours sincerely, Frank Lansing, 1244 Jettie Ave., Marion, Ind.

For permanent relief, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly. Two tablespoonsful daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the delicious nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran—so different from ordinary bran, which are unpalatable. Eat Kellogg's Bran with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumblid, is served by leading hotels and clubs in individual packages. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

MAIL CARRIERS BATTLE DEATH

Many Unsung Heroes Die While in Performance of Duty to U. S.

Washington.—Uncle Sam has his heroes in peace time as well as in war. Records of bravery and of heroism equal to the deeds of daring performed by those patriots who have faced shot and shell of an enemy country are not lacking among the army of employees of the United States government. While the hardships encountered and the loss of life are not so great in numbers as those recorded in actual warfare, nevertheless they bear mute testimony to the valiant service rendered by these faithful servants of the people, bent on performing the difficult tasks assigned them.

And the praises of these heroes are not sung in either prose or poetry. They are not broadcast throughout the land. There is no congressional medal of honor bestowed on them; no decoration of any kind awaits them. There is not even so much as a citation for bravery and meritorious service performed in the line of duty.

But these faithful employees of Uncle Sam never complain. They are not seeking notoriety. They are content to carry on their daily labors without thought of reward other than that which goes with the consciousness of duty fulfilled.

Carry Difficult Mail Routes.

There is no class of employees of the government that faces more actual perils of life and limb and are subject to more vicissitudes of the elements in their daily routine than some of the men who carry the mails over some of the more difficult of the star routes. These men are not paid salaries, but work under contract, awarded under the law as a result of competitive bidding. It might be said that they differ from all other government employees in that they fix their own salaries.

When it is pointed out that during the last two and a half years 55 carriers have lost their lives while in the performance of duty, it will be seen that the tasks assigned them are hazardous in the extreme.

To the city dweller a reference to the mail man brings a picture of the gray-coated carrier who delivers his letters and packages unhampered to any great extent by wind or weather. But the denizen of the rural district thinks of him as the driver of a horse-drawn or motor vehicle, whose arrival is regarded as an event in the daily life of the occupant of the farm, putting him, as it does, in touch with the outside world and with his fellow man.

In January of this year Reinhold Dreahin, carrier on the star route between Buffalo and Murchison, S. D., fell a victim of duty. For several years Dreahin had been making twice-a-week trips between the two hamlets, encountering all sorts of weather conditions, but never failing to carry out his part of the contract with the Post Office department. He had started from Murchison, as usual, on a certain Saturday, and when he did not put in an appearance the next day at Buffalo, a search was made for him.

Found Frozen to Death.

He was found just one mile outside of town with both hands and feet frozen. He was dead when discovered and it is estimated he had been exposed to the intense cold for over sixteen hours. The theory advanced for his death was that, becoming exhausted from a hard day's work, and while attempting to crank his car, he fell and was not able to recover his senses before he succumbed to the cold of the night.

Records of the Post Office department show that among the most dangerous and difficult routes served by rural carriers and star route contractors are those extending from Newport to Otter Rock, Ore.; Ellison Bay to Detroit Harbor, Wis.; Rocky Bar to Atlanta, Idaho, and from Sandusky to Kelley's Island, Middle Pass and Put-in-Bay.

On the Rocky Bar-Atlanta (Idaho) route, the service is performed in the winter season by carriers traveling on snowshoes, packing 50 pounds of mail. Not infrequently carriers on this route have been caught in snowdrifts and swept to death. Only a year or two ago a carrier lost his life in this way early in January and his body was not recovered until late the following June.

Carriers Face Ice Peril.

The routes from Ellison Bay to Detroit Harbor, Wis., and from Sandusky, Ohio, to nearby islands must be operated over the ice in the winter and in the fall when the lake is frozen. During the spring thaw it is extremely difficult and hazardous to carry on the service. A number of carriers have lost their lives in endeavoring to transport the mails between these points.

Probably one of the most hazardous experiences that ever befell one or more of Uncle Sam's mail carriers was that of the Hitchcock brothers, carriers on the routes out of Sandusky. Some winters ago, while endeavoring to deliver mail to residents of some of the smaller islands in Lake Erie they were caught in a storm and rapping ice. They were carried down the lake by the resistless force of a drift in which they had become wedged. The carriers were given up for lost by the excited islanders. A cablegram wired to Kelley's Island read:

"Look out for the carriers—they are fast in the ice and drifting that way." But the two men, after many efforts, were rescued. They were in an exhausted condition and so completely covered and weighed down with ice as to be helpless. Their caps were frozen fast to their heads and their clothes so loaded with ice that the wearers were unable to bend.

On arrival at home their friends were obliged to cut and tear away their ice-encased garments. After changing clothing a bushel of ice that had fallen off in the process was swept from the floor.

Brave Death on Lake.

For several years George and Charles Morrison were employed as carriers on the Bass Island route. They, too, passed through many arduous and trying experiences, being victims of many close calls. Out on the lake in all kinds of weather, with ice conditions of every description, they battled with storm, running ice, fog and blinding snow.

Formerly associated with George Morrison in the mail-carrying service was his brother-in-law, Carl Robert. The two were unexpectedly overtaken by an accident which resulted in the drowning of Robert. Among the articles carried was a long, unwieldy piece of metal. This, in some way, shifted, capsizing the boat. Morrison found himself struggling in the water. With great difficulty he succeeded in extricating himself, but Robert was carried under the ice. His body was not recovered until late the following spring.

Henry Elfers carried the mails to Kelley's Island for over forty years. During that time he had many hairbreadth escapes and adventures galore. "When I was a youngster," said Elfers not long ago, "I was out in a boat about all the time. Now I don't care for ordinary sailing, but battling with the ice has a fascination for me. As soon as the ice begins to form I feel eager to get out one of the ironclads and fight my way across. Each is a fat-bottomed skiff. There's a sail in the bow to carry us through the water or over the ice when conditions are right. There are two iron-shod runners on the bottom so the boat may be used as a sled. The sides are sheathed with galvanized iron. This is very important because thin ice will cut a boat like a knife."

Makes Fast Time on Ice.

"From here to Sandusky is ten miles in a direct line and I go there when conditions are good. At other times I go to Marblehead, which is four miles away and the nearest point on mainland. I have sailed these four miles over smooth ice in 20 minutes. I have covered the same distance in eight hours. That was when the ice was about an inch and half thick and I had to break my way over every foot of the four miles. At times the lake has been covered with icebergs 20 to 30 feet high and I have had to travel 15 miles in a roundabout course to reach Marblehead."

The craft used by Uncle Sam's carriers to deliver the mails to these points on Lake Erie is a combination sailboat, rowboat, ice yacht and sled. The star route from Ellison Bay, the northernmost post office in the Door county peninsula to Detroit Harbor, Wis., is one that is covered by carrier entirely by water, crossing the famous passage called "Death's Door."

Winter Period Dangerous.

During the months when navigation is open—that is, from May 1 to November 1—carrying the mail on this route is a comparatively safe occupation, and free from difficulties. It is during the winter period, however, from November 1 to May 1, that the carrier has more than a man's size job on his hands.

Let the postmaster at Detroit Harbor tell his own tale:

"The chief difficulty encountered while crossing Death's Door in winter," he says, "is drifting ice fields. The ice bridge that forms in extremely cold weather hardly ever remains for more than a few days at a time. It is speedily dissembled by shifting gales and currents. Sometimes this breakup occurs so suddenly that the carrier is caught out on the ice with his horse, sleigh and mail. It is at these times that the proximity of the United States coast guard station at Plumb Island is a godsend. One such incident took place some few years ago. The breakup occurred while the carrier was transporting the mail to this side over the ice with horse and sleigh. The ice became so thoroughly broken up that in a very short time the carrier found himself on an ice cake barely large and heavy enough to hold him and his equipment."

"The coast guard crew, having noticed his plight, came to the rescue. They succeeded in getting a line out to the carrier and then towed the whole cake over to the solid ice and the carrier was enabled to walk on to more solid ice and thereby reach the mainland."

Goes High to Hatch

Magnolia, Ark.—A hen story that surpasses some recent fish stories comes from J. R. Griffin, who owns a farm near Bussey. He says a hen of his flock stole her nest and hatched a brood of chickens in a hollow tree 25 feet from the ground. She was not discovered until she hatched her brood, when she was brought down by one of the farm hands.

Fishermen Routed by Whales

New York.—Thirty-five sperm whales have been playing around the lights of Cape May, N. J., according to men of the crew ashore. Two were so near that the men said they counted the humpbacks on their backs. A crew of fishermen came ashore through fear of the visitors. Shipping men think the whales came south with the ice floes, looking for food.

Turkish Name for Capital

Stambol is the Turkish name of Constantinople. It is specifically applied to that portion of the city—Constantinople proper—that lies south of the Golden Horn, as distinguished from Christian Constantinople, lying on the north side. Stambol occupies the site of ancient Byzantium and contains the mosque of St. Sophia, the Seraglio and almost all the antiquities to be seen in the city. Christian Constantinople is pre-eminently a commercial quarter. The name is written also Istanbul.—Kansas City Star.

Her Great TEMPTATION

For the first time in sixty centuries there is to be in Turkey a statue glorifying the human figure. Moukhill Kemal Bey, representative of Kemal Pasha, is in the United States to negotiate with Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, for its erection. Kemal Pasha, mounted, will surmount the figure. Mrs. Joshua S. Cosden, of Sands Point, on Long Island, N. Y., was entertaining the Prince of Wales when burglars ransacked her home and made away with several hundred thousands of dollars in jewels. Clarence Darrow, defender of internationally known criminals, says he will retire, now that he has won his biggest fight—that for life imprisonment of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb at Chicago for the murder of Bobby Franks. President Coolidge's cobbler, purveyor of much political knowledge, will have a try at it himself, since he has won the Republican nomination for the Legislature from his district in Northampton, Mass.

Pershing Says Farewell to Army

Service Is Highest Gift of Individual To His Country, Says General On Eve of Retirement.

On the eve of his retirement after 42 years' active service, John J. Pershing, General of the Armies, issued the following signed statement to his fellow soldiers through the columns of the current number of the Recruiting News, published today, which is the official publication of the U. S. Army:

"To participate in ceremonies attendant upon the retirement of officers and enlisted men, as I have done numberless times, gives one no adequate idea of his feelings when his own turn comes. But even in severing an association that has lasted as long as mine, there are some compensations. I can look back over that period and see the evolution of the army from a small body of highly specialized Indian fighters, for the most part remote both physically and mentally from the great mass of their fellow citizens, into the Army of today—Regulars, National Guard and Reserves—two-thirds of which are civilians participating in the business political and social lives of their various communities, but none the less integral factors in the national scheme of defense.

"The old Regular Army was the equal of any similar body in the world. Its officers were hard working, conscientious and efficient, the men well trained, without fear and possessed of a splendid spirit of loyalty and pride in the service. But the army was a thing apart from the everyday life of the nation. What it did or thought was of little interest to the ordinary citizen—unless the headlines told of battles and bloodshed.

"But the Great War which put so many of our young men into their country's uniform awakened in patriotic breasts a feeling for the Army, and interest in it and an understanding of its real aims and purposes. The history of the nation's military forces, too, has come in for its share of attention and the popular mind has become disabused of the idea that fighting alone is the occupation of the soldier and the great contribution of the Army to the development and progress of the United States recognized and appreciated.

"In turn the army's attitude toward its job has changed since the war. Service in peace or war has become the goal of its training, whether it be blazing an air route around the world, or lending trucks and men to help a harassed and master. Each man in the army should feel capable of expanding his usefulness, and, if necessary, becoming the instructor of an indefinite number of untrained men. That is the end eminently to be desired in all the activities of the army in times of peace.

"The army is the skeleton, however a very substantial skeleton upon which the muscles and sinews of the whole country can if need be, build up a champion of those principles for which the republic stands and always has stood.

"On Defense Day September 12 the date which marks my retirement, I shall have another consolation, one that will mitigate the thought of parting through the realization that the country has not allowed the lessons that cost so dearly in the World War be forgotten. With no malice but with forethought that marks the wise man, we shall I hope look at ourselves in time of fair weather to see how we might fare in a storm.

"What a turning out of A. E. F. veterans the 12th will see! It would not be modesty but affection if I did not recall with satisfaction having commanded the nation's great armies in the World War. And what patriotic, brave and aggressive men! What sacrifices and hardships they endured that first American Army that ever trod a battle field of the Old World! Such thoughts have been potent in inspiring the new spirit in the Regular Army. May that spirit continue to bring us the realization that service is the highest gift of the individual to his country."

JOHN J. PERSHING

Ingenious Idea

Mrs. Saburb was always very anxious to do the right thing and she lost no chance at all of showing her neighbors that she was a real, genuine, dyed-in-the-wool lady.

Recently some new people had moved into the neighborhood, and Mrs. Saburb was discussing them with her daughter.

"Well, Mary," she said, "I suppose we shall have to call on those people. Just take your scissors and cut some sort of hole in one of our visiting cards, will you?"

"Whatever for, mother?" asked Mary. "What will that mean?"

"It doesn't mean anything that I know of," replied mother, "but they'll think it does and feel rather small to find out that they don't know as much about society ways as we do."

Tribute to Healing Spring

The ancient and famous mineral springs from which the town of Bath, England, receives its name and fame, are rich in historical reminiscence. Between 1612 and 1784 it was the custom for persons of distinction who had derived benefit from the Bath mineral waters to present a brass ring to be fixed in the wall of the bath for the help and support of those bathing in the hot water. John Revet visited Bath in 1674, and appropriately presented a brass ring, which may still be seen on the walls of the king's bath. The inscription reads: "Thanks to God, I, John Revet, his Majesty's Brevetier, at fifty years of age of July, 1674, received Cure of a True Palsie from Head to Foot on one side."

Prince Did Not Attend Fight

Instead, He Retired Early to "Catch Up" on Sleep Lost Since Reaching America—Displays Remarkable "Pep."

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Syosset, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Despite announcements made in New York that Edward Albert, the Prince of Wales, was a ringside spectator at last night's fight between Harry Willis and Luis Firpo, Captain A. F. Lascelles, his secretary, told newspapermen today that the Prince was not at the fight.

"The Prince spent a quiet afternoon," Captain Lascelles said, "dined privately and in the evening made a few calls on Long Island. He was not in Manhattan and he was not in Jersey City."

Confirmation of the fact that for once at least the Prince actually did spend a quiet evening catching up on lost sleep, came when newspapermen called the James A. Burden estate last night at 10 o'clock and were answered by a butler roused from his slumbers, who said H. R. H. was asleep at that hour.

Long Islanders are amazed at the "pep" of the Prince and his ability to keep up a strenuous round of engagements at dancing parties, polo and social functions in his honor, but the Prince shows no ill effects and appears to be vibrant with health and the joy of living.

Although no definite time has been fixed for Wales' departure for his ranch in Canada because of the postponement of the polo matches, he came to America to see it was said today that he has made tentative plans to leave here either Wednesday or Thursday.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

"The Bird of Paradise" will be the offering at the Opera House this evening. Richard Walton Tully's romance of the Hawaiian Islands is one of the classics of the American stage. The plays staged by the Myrtle-Harder Company this week at the Opera House have pleased large audiences and tonight's offerings is expected to be no exception.

"The Goose Hangs High" will be staged at the Opera House next Wednesday.

"Babbitt" is now playing at the Keeney Theater. The cast consists of Willard Lewis in the main role supported by Mary Alden, Carmel Myers, Gertrude Olmstead, Raymond McKee, and others.

Pola Negri in her fourth American starring picture, "Shadows of Paris," a Herbert Brenon Paramount production, is surrounded by a brilliant array of supporting players. The story is one of the upper and lower world of Paris, the playground of the entire world. It is a colorful and appealing tale, an adaptation of the French play, "Mon Homme," by the author of "Kiki." At the Orpheum Theater today and tomorrow in conjunction with vaudeville of the better kind.

At the Auditorium today Charles (Buck) Jones in Hell's Hole one of the fastest, sure-fire action plays in many a day. There's only one thing in the picture that gets ahead of Charlie. That's the avalanche near the end of the feature.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 12.—Stock prices were inclined slightly downward in a dull and irregular market today, following a firm opening in which the industrial leaders showed fractional improvement over the previous close. The oil stocks, on which the market depended for main support in recent sessions, was thrown into confusion by the heavy cut in gasoline prices in 11 states by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Prices were reduced to 14 cents a tank wagon, in Chicago, and from 2 to 3 cents a gallon outside. The Sinclair Company announced that it had met the cut, reducing prices proportionately in all competing territory.

Industrial stocks were buoyant partly in reflection in the relaxed condition of the money market. U. S. Steel, American Can and Baldwin sold fractionally higher in the first period, but displayed an irregular tone as soon as offerings were increased. The grain markets showed no intention to follow up the sharp rally which ended yesterday's session, and cotton was only moderately active. Call money rates remained at 2 per cent and foreign exchange markets were steady.

Some interest returned to the railroad and mercantile stocks in the early trading, but buying was on a very small scale. Norfolk and Western was in demand on reports that the Pennsylvania Railroad, instead of leasing the road, as contemplated, was now attempting to purchase control in the open market. The stock made a 2 point gain while the balance of the railroad stocks were motionless.

Schuyler Retail Stores followed up its point gain of yesterday with another rise of about 3 points, and started a rally in the mercantile stocks, in Montgomery-Ward, Gimbel, Gold Dust and Sears-Roebuck.

Nash Motors sold down 6 points on reports that the company had lost about $2,000,000 on the Lafayette motor operations, though announcement was made that a fund had been set aside to meet this deficit. Studebaker made a slight improvement on official announcement that its new model would be on exhibition this week. Other motors were inactive and generally firm.

De Islets-Baird.

A Clam Bake.
There was a happy gathering of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Smedes on Marlborough road Sunday, September 7. The occasion was to participate in an old fashioned Rhode Island clam bake. Mr. and Mrs. John Richards and J. E. Frank of 42 Furnace street, supervised the preparations. When the bake was opened the deliciously cooked clams, bluefish, lobsters, crabs, chicken, green corn, sweet potatoes and all the other viands which go to make up a Rhode Island bake, attested to the culinary proficiency of the supervisors. Watermelon and other necessary accessories followed. Friends from Kingston and Jersey City made up the party. They left with the highest regard for the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Smedes, and all expressed the hope that they would be invited soon again.

Fogg-Hasbrouck.
A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guniford Hasbrouck on Livingston street on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Miss Doris Hasbrouck, their daughter, became the bride of Charles Ferris Fogg of Lynn, Mass. The ceremony, which was witnessed by only the immediate family, owing to the recent illness of Mr. Hasbrouck, was performed by the Rev. Charles G. Ellis, pastor of the Roundabout Presbyterian Church. The bride, who was gowning in a handsome going-away costume, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Appleton Gregory of Albany, acting as matron of honor, while Appleton Gregory was Mr. Fogg's best man. Little Jane Gregory, niece of the bride, was the winsome flower girl. The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School, also of the Training School of Nurses of the Post Graduate Hospital, New York city. For some time she has been in charge of the child welfare work being conducted in the city by the Junior League where she has been as popular as she is in the younger society set of Kingston of which she is a member. Following a honeymoon auto trip through New England, Mr. and Mrs. Fogg will return to this city for a time.

Farm Products at The Exposition

Ulster County's Products Exhibited by Ulster County Farm Bureau at Kingston Exposition Next Week. Most Complete Ever Shown Here.

The Ulster County Farm Bureau at the Kingston Exposition at the Kingston Fair Grounds all next week will be especially attractive, complete and interesting. Planned with an idea of showing the people of Ulster county exactly what farmers are accomplishing through the aid of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, the exhibit will have an educational value far beyond first realization.

Foremost among the exhibits will be the sprayed fruit, consisting mostly of apples, packed under the New York state grade law in several different containers as prescribed by law. This exhibit will not only show the best fruit that is grown in Ulster county but also to show the difference between sprayed and graded fruit as compared with the unsprayed New York fruit which is generally seen in the markets.

There will be an interesting display of poultry products, showing graded and selected eggs as they are now put on the market by the best poultrymen in Ulster county.

The G. L. F. Exchange, which is the grain and seed farmers cooperative in New York state, provides an exhibit made by the Gardiner G. L. F. Cooperative, assisted by the Accord Farmers' Cooperative, Stone Ridge and High Falls also assisting in this exhibit. The exhibit of certified seeds and grain also is educational.

Lake Katrine Grange will have an exhibit of farm products, etc., grown in that vicinity.

The Hudson River Fruit Exchange, with principal offices at Milton, will have a large exhibit of fruit grown in Ulster county.

The Dairymen's League will occupy a booth with an educational exhibit.

The Ulster County Home Bureau will have an extensive exhibit, demonstrating different projects, including clothing, nutrition, food preservation, junior extension work and household management. These are the five principle projects which are carried on in that bureau's line of work.

A fruit spraying machine will be exhibited. This machine is such as is used by fruit growers to spray their trees and fruit during the growing season for the control of insects and fungicides which attack the fruit and foliage. Also will be exhibited a dusting machine used by many growers for the same control of fruit pests that the spraying machine is used for.

The Esopus Cooperative Fruit Growers' Association will have a large exhibit of fruit grown in the vicinity of Ulster Park.

The Boys' Corn Club of Ulster County will have an interesting exhibit of grain grown by them this season and there will be exhibits of Ulster county grown grains, potatoes, etc., from certified seed.

The State College of Agriculture will have an educational exhibit, showing the different agricultural projects fostered by the college, and also a TB exhibit relating to cattle.

The Conservation Commission will make a very extensive exhibit demonstrating the havoc made by bluster rust in the state and the present control of the same. There will be an exhibit of farm grown products by many individual farmers.

The spray service department of the Ulster County Farm Bureau will be well represented.

There will be a man on hand at all times to explain and show by microscopic exhibits the different insects and other pests which attack fruit and the different means of control that are now used.

Pershing Spends Last Day on Duty

Age Limit of 64 Years Compels His Retirement As General of the Armies. App. Noon Saturday—Led Expeditionary Forces in France.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 12.—The army is saying "Good bye" today to General John J. Pershing.

At noon tomorrow, after forty-two consecutive years of service, General Pershing will retire from the army and formally relinquish his post as chief of staff. His retirement comes, not of his own volition, but because of the unchanging military rule which retires all members of the army automatically at the age of 64. General Pershing will observe his 64th birthday tomorrow.

There will be no formal ceremonies to mark General Pershing's retirement from the army and from the office he has held since August 31, 1920. This is in accordance with military custom and with the personal desires of the General.

General Pershing will be succeeded by Major General John L. Hines, who has been deputy chief of staff for several years.

Pershing's last full day as chief of staff was a busy one. He was at his office in the War Department at 9:30 to receive all army officers and thank them for their cooperation.

At 11:30 o'clock he summoned before him the chiefs of all the branches and bureaus of the War Department to receive their final plans for Defense Day.

His own participation in Defense Day ceremonies took place this afternoon when he with Secretary of War Weeks, reviewed the Defense Day parade in Washington and made a brief address from the reviewing stand.

Tonight General Pershing will make his farewell address as chief of staff to the army and to the people of the United States. He will speak over the radio from the War Department.

Tomorrow morning General Pershing will receive the officers of the general staff and the heads of all the bureaus of the War Department. Each group will be presented by the chief of its division and full dress uniforms with ribbons will be worn. General Pershing joined the army as a cadet at the Military Academy at West Point on July 1, 1882, and was commissioned second lieutenant on July 1, 1886. He joined his regiment, the Sixth Cavalry, at Fort Bayard, New Mexico, on September 30, 1886. Since that time he has been continuously in the military service.

Most of his time, until the Spanish-American War of 1898, General Pershing spent with the army in western posts. He was in the campaign against the Apache Indians in 1886-87 and in the field against the Sioux Indians in South Dakota in 1891. In 1893 he fought in the Santiago campaign in Cuba and in 1899 he went to the Philippines, remaining in those islands most of the time until 1903, holding various important military commands.

After 1903 he held various military posts, including that of military attaché to the embassy at Tokio, and spent some time in Europe as an observer.

He came most prominently before the public when he led the expeditionary forces into Mexico in 1914, and achieved world wide fame when he became commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in France in May, 1917. He was appointed General of the Armies, the highest military rank in the United States, on September 8, 1919.

Big Gold Loan To Germany Soon

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Sept. 12.—A Central News dispatch from Rome today quoted Charles Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, one of America's greatest financial institutions, as declaring that a gold loan of 800,000,000 gold marks (approximately $200,000,000) will be made to Germany within two months.

All New York banks have taken ample precautions to protect subscribers to the loan, and he predicted heavy American subscription.

Interview by Tribune, Mr. Mitchell predicted that both France and Italy would participate in the loan.

Duffy of East Kingston, whose skull was fractured at the base, is still at the hospital, improving slowly, and it is thought he will recover. The scene of the accident was on the Kingston-Saugerties road near the Red House and the accident occurred early in the evening.

FINE FEATHERS AND PAINTED FURS.

(By Eleanor Gunn).
Possibly because of our recent visitor from England, we are more receptive to the regal fur and velvet are sure to bring forth; but, in any event, even in Indian summer instead of winter, we are enthusiasts on the subject of fur bandings.

The sheathlike line of the frock sketched suddenly flares out to accommodate a wide fur border and to give a reason for the rich embroidered motif which is all the frock boasts by way of trimming.

The elaboration of the majority of evening models being shown is a matter of daily comment, Paris having given us this cue at the recent opening. There are many extraordinary trimmings to know about, too; not the most unusual being gilded fur.

Feathers which have been dipped in gold or silver are no longer a novelty, and furs are following suit. Several of the more ultra evening wraps are being trimmed with bear which has been dipped in gold paint. Other unusual trimmings are grebe, which is enjoying quite a success, and duck feathers of various kinds; for while ostrich is much used, it does not come under the list of the unusual.

For street wear shaved lamb is making history for itself, and the leopard and wild cat family are received everywhere.

It is rumored that muffs may be among the many revivals with which fashion is now concerned, even feather muffs being on the tapes.

Tourists Praise Catskills' Camps

Public Camp Sites Maintained by State Forest Preserve Highly Commended by Brooklyn Resident Who Spent Four Days in Mountains.

The public camp sites maintained by the state forest preserve are highly appreciated by tourists. In a recent letter to Conservation Commissioner Alexander Macdonald, George E. Peaslee of Brooklyn writes: "I have just completed a four day trip into the Catskill mountains and I want to express my appreciation of the wonderful work you are doing for the people of New York state in providing such a fine place in which to spend a vacation, be it short or long. "I went to Arkville and got in touch with Mr. Todd, who gave me a wealth of information and sent me back into the woods to a fine open place with a fireplace in front of it. My family and myself never spent such an enjoyable three days and nights as we did in this camp. "We will never cease to talk about it and tell our friends what a time we had. Everything about the camp was in fine shape. The camp is ideally located and everything perfect. Mr. Todd is a wonderful man and the right man in the right place. He went to a lot of trouble to see that we were comfortable. We will never forget how kind he was to us on our first trip to the finest camping ground in the country. "It seems to me that there should be many more just such camps as these for they supply a real need. I could not let this opportunity go by without thanking you."

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

GATLING GUNS.
The revolving batteries which have worked such havoc in modern warfare, were invented by Richard Jordan Gatling, an American, who was born in Hartford County, N. C. 66 years ago today, September 12, 1858. The son of a rich planter, he devoted himself to mechanical invention, and after producing a machine for planting rice and other grain in drills, which soon came into wide use, a steam plow and other useful devices, he turned his attention to perfecting an instrument of destruction. In 1861 he conceived the idea of the gatling gun and made it in Cincinnati, but they were destroyed by fire. He then made 12 elsewhere and they were used by Gen. Butler in the James River campaign. In 1865 he improved his invention and settling at Hartford devoted himself to the manufacture of the formidable weapon.

CINQ-MARS.
On September 12, 1642, Cinquars, the favorite of Louis XIII, was executed by order of Cardinal Richelieu. He had been introduced to court as a spy on the king, whose favorite he soon became. Enmity grew up between him and Richelieu, against whom he entered into a conspiracy. He was arrested and executed at the age of twenty-two. His history has formed the basis of many plots for romance writers and dramatists. On this date in 1633 the siege of Vienna was raised. The city was besieged by the Turkish army of 200,000, and was weakly defended, but the king of Poland, the Duke of Lorraine hastened with troops to its relief, and the Ottoman troops withdrew without fighting. Thus Europe was saved from the danger of being overrun by the Turks.

EXPERIENCE WEST.
Was one of the best known of her time, and the wife of the Rev. Dr. West, who was pastor of a New Bedford, Mass., church for nearly half a century, in the latter part of the 18th and first half of the 19th century. The life of Mrs. West abounded in praiseworthy, though unrecorded deeds. The good doctor was well aware of the worth of his helpmeet, and had a punning way of praising her which must have sounded odd in a Puritan divine a hundred years ago. Mrs. Experience West was unusually tall, and he sometimes remarked to intimate friends, that he found, by "long" Experience, that it is good to be married.

Good Breed of Dog
The schipperke dog got his name from being so frequently seen on canals of Belgium, where he makes a good "watch" and is used oftentimes as an exterminator of rats. Doubtless the breed is in some ways related to the "wolf spitz" of central Europe. He is covered with glossy, straight, black hair, and the whole of his neck and chest is covered with an erect frill of longer hair.

LATEST NEWS OF NEW YORK STATE FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Prepared for This Paper by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, Ithaca, N. Y.

Farm Bureau Secures Railway Adjustments

The transportation department of the N. Y. State Farm Bureau federation is giving important and valuable service to New York state farmers, according to Secretary E. V. Underwood, is securing adjustments from railways on claims decided by the roads.

An example of what the federation is doing along this line is cited by Mr. Underwood in the case of E. V. Boardman of Nichols, N. Y., who last fall lost eight cows, killed on his private crossing by an evening train. His claim was denied by the railway but the transportation department of the federation succeeded in securing a 50 per cent settlement.

Another case recently satisfactorily completed by the federation was the so-called Southampton Trackage case. Upwards of 400 cars of potatoes are shipped annually from Southampton station. Because of the lack of adequate team trackage the loaders have been obliged to put up with many delays and much inconvenience, a direct loss in dollars and cents to them, considering the high cost of labor. After two years of unsuccessful negotiation with railway officials to secure the additional trackage needed, the shippers turned the matter over to the federation. This summer, after several months of discussion back and forth, the railway agreed to stand the expense of $11,000 necessary to put in the needed trackage.

Farmers' Organization Admitted to Chicago Board of Trade

The newly organized co-operative grain marketing company, known as the Grain Marketing company, was recently admitted to the Chicago board of trade. This is the first time a farmer-owned and controlled co-operative has been admitted to membership on the board.

More than 1,000,000 bushels of grain are being handled each day by the Grain Marketing company. It is expected that within ten days all the terminal facilities will be working to capacity.

Lee and Ladd Attend Farm Bureau Meetings

A series of district meetings of regional directors of the N. Y. State Farm Bureau federation was concluded on Sept. 8. Duos Lee of Yorktown Heights, president of the federation, and E. V. Underwood of Ithaca, secretary, attended all the meetings. Carl Ladd, director of extension at Cornell, and Jay Corryell, county agent leader, were also present at nearly every meeting. It is expected that some important announcements will be made concerning plans for farm bureau activities as a result of the meeting.

Poultrymen Compete With Experts in State Packing Test

Many New York state poultrymen entered an egg packing competition conducted by the New York state department of farms and markets, designed to train producers to pack eggs so that they will receive the top price. The poultrymen selected 80 dozen eggs, packed them carefully, and then took them to an egg show where the cases were examined by an expert who showed the producers how improvements might be made. The contests were held in Oswego, Fremont, Hortonville, Fosterdale, Narrowsburg and Washingtonville.

Dairymen's League Changes Head of Sales Department

B. Q. Grady has tendered his resignation as director of sales and advertising of the Dairymen's League Co-operative association. Mr. Grady came with the League in January, 1923, having formerly been sales and advertising manager for the raisin growers in California. Paul Christian, formerly in charge of the association's sales of Dairylea evaporated milk in the South, has been promoted to the position vacated by Mr. Grady.

Strivings and Myers Will Be On Federation Radio Program

B. L. Strivings of Castile, N. Y., master of the New York State grange, and W. I. Myers of the farm management department of the N. Y. State College of Agriculture, will be radio speakers on the federation program for September. They will speak W. G. Y. Schenectady, on Monday evening, Sept. 29.

Dairymen's League Will Exhibit at State Fair

The Dairymen's League Co-operative association has a headquarters at the State Fair in Syracuse this week. An exhibit shows the journey of League milk from the farm to the consumer. Two or three representatives of the organization are in attendance at the booth to answer questions.

Caviar in Hamburg

The world's largest storehouse of caviar—supplying the New York, London and Paris markets—is in Hamburg. Outside of Russia, caviar is one of the most expensive luxuries of European tables. But in Petrograd or Moscow it is a common dish of the workmen.

Rally in Ninth Beat Culloton

Bud Culloton lost a hard fought game pitching for the Pittsburgh Nationals in an exhibition game against Buffalo at the latter's diamond Wednesday, score 5 to 4. Manager Webb's home run drive over the left field wall after Dye had doubled in the ninth inning, enabled the home team to emerge the winners.

Webb also collected another home run off the former Colonial pitcher. In the seventh inning his homer tied the score. Jelley also hit a homer.

Score by innings: r. h. e. Buffalo 0 1 0 0 0 0 2 0—5 7 2 Pittsburgh 0 2 0 0 0 0 2 0—4 9 0 Gordy and Hill; Culloton and E. Smith.

Colonials Split Double-Header

With Glens Falls Outfit at Fair Grounds Thursday, losing First Game 1 to 0 and Winning Second 3 to 0—Harris and Forsythe Pitchers.

There are quite a number of pitchers who have made their name in the game by pitching double-headers and winning both ends of the bill. Bob Grody of Glens Falls tried to pull this stunt on the Colonials Thursday and at the end of the first nine innings, the Colonials were scoreless and Glens Falls had hung up a single tally. Grody went right on into the second battle and until the fifth inning he had the locals standing on their heads. But, like so many other pitchers have learned, Grody found that the Schirickmen are not to be denied their runs forever. The second contest was in favor of the locals, 3 to 0.

It was a flaw in the Glens Falls defense that let the first Colonial across the plate in the second game but Bobby Coyle's big bat accounted for the other two without any aid from the Glens Falls fielders. Bobby treated himself to a typical Coyle homer, over the left field fence on a long looping drive. Morgan was on the bags when Coyle hit for the circuit.

Harris was on the mound for the Schirickmen when the first game started and he deserved a better fate. He allowed the same number of hits that the Colonials collected off Grody in this game, four. Two misplays hooked up with Akins' single in the fourth inning gave the visitors their only tally. Harris was touched for but two hits up until two were out in the ninth and then Lyons and Morone got the ball through the infield.

Rube Forsythe was quite as effective in the second game as was his teammate in the first. He allowed three hits and but for his generosity in issuing several bases on balls, he would have never been in trouble. The Colonials wasted a hit in the first inning of the opener when Flynn was out stealing. In the second inning another safety went, Raskin being forced at second by Coyle and Schwab hitting into a double play, Lyons to Morone to Alexander.

The lone and winning run was pushed across the rubber in the fourth with a couple Colonials helping in the pushing. Stewart was thrown out but Akins singled to center field. Lyons hit to Deegan and Akins advanced to second while Matty was tossing out the batter. Robins tried to catch Akins napping and whipped the ball to second but neither Flynn or Deegan covered the throw and Akins raced to third while Raskin was making a hurried recovery. Morone topped a fast ball and sent it rolling down the first base line. Coyle juggled the ball long enough for Morone to make first and Akins to cross the plate and the damage was done.

Fitzpatrick was the first Colonial to get on base after the second inning. He was walked to start the seventh. Grody tightened up and fanned both Flynn and Deegan and got Raskin on a grounder to short. Haber's throw on Tubby's blow was wide and high and for a moment it looked as though a Colonial run would be scored for Fitz came all the way from second and was within twenty feet of the plate when Alexander pulled the wild peg out of the air and put the ball on Tubby five feet ahead of the bag.

Coyle doubled with no one down in the eighth and Harris singled before anyone was retired in the ninth but both times Grody hitched his trousers and began to bear down with the result that the following batters were all easy outs.

Davis Cup to Remain Here

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 12.—Faced with almost certain failure in its attempt to lift the Davis cup the Australian combination of Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood prepared today to battle to the death against William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston, the American defenders, in the doubles match of the series. The Aussies were expected to win the match but the loss of two singles matches to Vincent Richards and Tilden yesterday is believed to have sealed the doom of the challengers. The Americans need only Tilden's almost inevitable victory over Pat O'Hara Wood tomorrow to retain possession of the cup.

Another feature on today's program will be the final round of the girls' national championship in singles. The match will bring together Miss Helen Jacobs, of California, reputed to be another Helen Wills and Miss Alice Francis, of Orange, N. J.
